EXPECT 3RD ARREST IN BIZARRE MURDER OF RHETA WYNEKOOP

Doctor's Confession Placed
Strong "Accident" Defense
Against State's Case

FOUR LIVED IN HOUSE

Said to Have Made Remark
That She Had To Help Out

CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 27.—Arrest of a third person for questioning as a possible suspect in the bizarre operating table slaying of pretty Rheta Gardner Wynekoop, 23, was looked for today as Earl Wynekoop, the philandering husband of the dead girl faced arraignment on a murder charge.

Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop, mother-in-law of the girl killed while on the operating table, whose confession placed a strong "accident" defense against the state's case, was quoted as having said to a close friend, "I had to help — out."

Police were informed that the person must have had access to the big 16-room Wynekoop house of gloom, in which Rheta died and in which Dr. Wynekoop maintained both her home and office. Those who lived in the house with the 62 year old woman were her son, Earl, the murdered girl and Enid Hennessey, a high school teacher and a lodger there for ten years.

Ten Turkeys and 100 Other Prizes Are Given at Party

NEWPORTVILLE, Nov. 27.—The turkey card party held for benefit of the Newportville Fire Company, Saturday, was a big success. There were 55 tables of players, 43 assembling in the fire house and 12 at the home of Mrs. E. H. Middleton, of which were 46 tables of pinochle, five of "500" and four of bridge.

Ten turkeys were given out and 100 other prizes.

Those receiving high scores were: Pinochle—Pete Caputa, 748; Mrs. M. Esbacher, 729; Mrs. John Ferguson, 711; H. Hunter, 710; and Robert Cameron, 705.

"500": Hester Boyle, 4280; Mrs. S. Cullen, 3840; Elizabeth Brennan, 3700; Mrs. Elmer Hummel, 3360; and Mrs. Sadie McGinley, 3250.

Bridge: John Wheeler, 2011; Mrs. Andy Newton, 2007; M. O'Donnell, 1762; Miss Louise Davis, 1565, and Miss Margaret McGee, 1421.

This was the largest card party held for benefit of the fire company.

INDICATIONS POINT TO SHORT ASSEMBLY TERM

Populace Somewhat Startled
By Quick Action of
The Legislature

MAKES NEW RECORD

By William J. Kelly
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

HARRISBURG, Nov. 27.—(INS)—A skeptical populace, startled by the speedy action on liquor control legislation, looks to Pennsylvania's General Assembly with renewed hope that the general demand for a "short, inexpensive" session is in the making.

The record of accomplishments during the first two weeks of the extraordinary session probably is without parallel in the keystone state's recent history. Two bills, one designed to bring millions of dollars in badly needed revenue into the General Fund immediately, were signed by the Governor. Several others advanced to the final passage stage.

Strangely, the majority of the bills pushed forward in the legislative mill were administration measures. Recalling the distastefulness shown by legislators to his bills, Gov. Gifford Pinchot was reported "astonished and happy" by cabinet officers. They cannot account for the change of front on the part of legislators, the majority of whom are members of the regular Republican organization.

Even political observers, who have witnessed the antics of law-makers for nearly a score of years are surprised by the rapidity in which things are being accomplished.

Still they are not convinced that future weeks will bring a repetition of the apparent smoothness and rhythmic motion with which the legislative wheels have turned so far. They anticipate a break that will turn the ranks of all factions into turmoil.

Speedy action during the first two weeks is attributed by them to the necessity for enactment of liquor laws before December 5. If the state has no alcoholic statutes on the books when prohibition bids farewell to the nation, someone must account for their absence. Neither the Governor nor the Republican organization want to be the one to make this explanation.

Another factor promoting the favorable work is contained in remarks made by the Governor.

"The people of Pennsylvania are not in a frame of mind to stand for much monkey business," he said. "I know it—and I think the members of the legislature know it."

If the "short, inexpensive" session is to be realized and politics are to be ignored, the general belief is that the legislature will not begin to consider all topics contained in the chief executive's proclamation.

An indication that social legislation and other measures punctuated with politics will be left to the 1935 General Assembly was contained in the minority report of the "sweatshop" committee. They saw no reason for duplicating things now being accomplished under the NRA.

It will not be surprising to see legislators consider what they think essential at present and ring down the curtain on the special session.

WIGGIN BACK AT WASHINGTON

Washington, D. C., Nov. 27.—Albert H. Wiggin, former head of the Chase National Bank, came back to the Senatorial spotlight today to answer the charges of William Fox, former movie magnate, that he headed a bankers' conspiracy in 1930 which "captured" the Fox Film Empire. Wiggins already has denied Fox's sensational charge that the bankers sent word to President Hoover at that time to "please mind his own business" after the President sought to intervene in Fox's behalf. Fox said the President intervened to prevent the collapse of his $300,000,000 organization in the midst of the depression.

VARIETY OF ACTIVITIES ARE REPORTED AT THE WOOD ST. SCHOOL; THANKSGIVING, PATRIOTIC AND MISCELLANEOUS PROJECTS ARE NOW UNDER WAY

Sixth Grade Pupils Learn
"The American Creed,"
Also A Poem

THE LIBRARY ATTRACTS

One Group of Students Makes Butter During Geography Class

Wood street public school is a busy place these days, with all classes keeping busy with regular lessons and special features.

First and second grades of Wood street school are making a frieze for Thanksgiving, illustrating the landing of the Mayflower, Indian and Pilgrim villages.

This project includes art, history, geography, spelling, writing and English (dramatization, readings and poems).

In the third grade, Miss Foster's room, the children are constructing a Thanksgiving project, "The First Thanksgiving of the Pilgrims and Indians." They are also making a food poster for Thanksgiving.

The sixth grade, taught by Miss Minnie L. Rodrock, has committed to memory "The American Creed," by William Tyler Page, as a part of good citizenship. The pupils of that room have also learned the poem "Independence Bell" in connection with the study of "The American Revolution." They expect to begin the study of "Lincoln's Gettysburg Address," after Thanksgiving.

This year Wood street school is proud to have its orchestra again, somewhat smaller because of many last year's members going to the Harriman school, but still able to carry on as an orchestra. The violinists are Ruth James and Herman Corn, trumpet, Tony Tison; xylophonist, Donald Glazer; pianists, Jane Howell and Lucille Munce. All the members are seventh graders.

The seventh grade has also been enjoying its Friday afternoon assemblies. Special programs have been given on special days, such as Roosevelt's birthday, Armistice Day, and recently a very special program on George Washington was heard. Other Fridays the children give an entertainment or if no special program has been arranged, new songs are learned.

The library has been working under a new system, so far this year, to get the children interested in really reading outside books. Last week marked the beginning of taking books out of the library for home reading.

Plans have now been made for Thanksgiving and Christmas entertainments, which will be the next big events in this school year.

All classes have been busy preparing for and taking the Fall tests from the office. All the tests have been completed, so study for the next section of work has been started.

The seventh grade has a "traveling artist" who goes to each room and puts a drawing on the board to represent special seasons. One of the students is doing this. He was in demand at Halloween time and now his Thanksgiving decorations are being enjoyed.

The safety patrol has been quite an active organization. The boys are always busy with their duties, and all

PERFECTING PERSONNEL FOR CIVIL WORKS PLAN

Thomas B. Stockham Named
As Comptroller to Assist Administrator Roberts.

OFFICES OPENED HERE

The organization which is to handle the operation of the Federal Civil Public Works program in Bucks County of which John S. Roberts, Jr., is the administrator, is now being formed.

The offices of the administrator here at Bristol are a bee-hive of activity and every effort is being made to get the movement underway just as quickly as the details can be put into operation. There is an immense amount of detail in connection with the affair.

Thomas B. Stockham, Morrisville, has been named comptroller and will work in co-operation with Mr. Roberts in perfecting the details. Mr. Stockham will have his office here in the Municipal Building.

Louis B. Gilton, Bristol, has been appointed as disbursing officer and will attend to the paying of the men. His office also will be in the Municipal Building.

Calling for employment of 1160 and a total expenditure of $250,000, the largest civil works project yet authorized in Pennsylvania today bore the approval of Eric M. Biddle, state C. W. A.

The project is for construction and development of a park and parkway in Mount Penn Park at Reading.

Governor Gifford Pinchot again warned politics must be kept out of the civil works administration and that any state employees who violate this principle will be dismissed forthwith.

HULMEVILLE

A motor trip to Wilmington, Del., was enjoyed yesterday by Mr. and Mrs. George LeCompte, Hulmeville; Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Gregg and George Buchan, South Langhorne. The party visited relatives in Wilmington. Slight damage was done when the roof on the barn at the property of Harry Brown caught fire from bonfire sparks, Saturday. The William Penn Fire Company was summoned.

Tonight will be Boys' Night at the Methodist Church. All men and boys have been invited to participate in a most enjoyable evening.

At the home of Miss Myrtle Egly the Peppy Pals will meet tomorrow evening.

Kimber Faust sustained an injury to his thumb while playing football last week.

NAME PERCY G. FORD AUTO DEALER OFFICIAL

Appoint C. W. Winter Chairman of Bristol
District

PLAN TO CO-OPERATE

Nearly 40 automobile dealers, representing all portions of the county, held a meeting at the Fountain House, Doylestown, Friday evening, and organized as a group to function as a dealer body and association.

Of the fifty-eight dealers in the county, almost 40 were in attendance. Officers elected included Charles E. Radcliff, Doylestown, as president; William B. Shelly, of Quakertown, first vice-president, and Percy G. Ford of Bristol, second vice president. Another County Seat dealer, Warren F. Bryan, was elected to serve as secretary-treasurer.

Ray Irwin, of Bustleton, presided over the elections. The meeting was called together, however, by Mr. Radcliff, who acted as temporary chairman.

He assured the dealers present that Bucks county will have one hundred per cent membership in the association within the next ten days. He explained that the county is divided into six districts—Doylestown, Perkasie-Sellersville, Quakertown, Riegelsville, Newtown and Bristol.

President Radcliff appointed a chairman for each district. Chairman who will represent their district on the code committee follows: District No. 1, Doylestown, J. J. Conroy; District No. 2, Newtown, D. Russell Bond; District No. 3, Bristol, C. W. Winter; District No. 4, Quakertown, Alfred Johnson; District No. 5, Perkasie-Sellersville, R. B. Weisel; District No. 6, Riegelsville, George Good.

The newly formed association will meet once a month for the next six months as a county group. The meetings, which will be dinner-meetings followed by a speaker and a discussion of the code, will be held on the second Thursday of each month at 6.15 o'clock in Doylestown.

The guest speaker, H. E. Cardozo, Jr., district administrator of the Motor Vehicle Retail Code Administration of Pennsylvania District No. 1, of Philadelphia, urged the dealers to meet at various intervals and stressed the importance of organization.

He pointed out that prices allowed for used cars will be governed by the amount the public will pay for them. Used car prices will be established and derived from the sales selling price paid by the public.

The association was formally named as the Bucks County Automobile Dealers' Association.

TULLYTOWN

CALM FOLLOWS LYNCHING

San Jose, Cal., Nov. 27.—An outraged community which reverted to the lynch law to punish kidnapping and murder, today resumed its customary placidity. In the morgue lay three still forms, one the horribly mutilated body of Brooke Hart, 22, San Jose kidnap victim. The other two were the bodies of his confessed kidnappers and murderers, Thomas Thurmond and Jack Holmes, dragged from the ancient county jail, stripped of most of their clothing and hanged from a Sycamore tree in the city's public park. An attempt to burn one of the bodies failed.

As San Jose buzzed with speculation over the identity of the blonde girl who played a leading part in the vigilante lynching, authorities of the city and county announced they intended to make "little, if any, investigation of the deaths meted out last night to the two confessed kidnappers and murderers." "There seems little that can be done," Deputy District Attorney Herbert Bridges said.

GOLD PRICE UNCHANGED

Washington, D. C., Nov. 27.—The administration apparently is slowing down its drive for higher commodity prices through artificially boosting the price of gold. For the sixth consecutive day the Treasury left the price unchanged today at $33.76 an ounce. As usual, no explanation was forthcoming as to the reason, but in some quarters it was interpreted as indicating that the administration has determined upon a cautious policy at this time when its whole monetary policy is under fire.

Dispatches from the winter White House at Warm Springs have stated that President Roosevelt, far from being moved by the criticism of the experiment, planned to push steadily ahead with his gold buying dollar depreciation program. Consequently, when Acting Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau returned to Washington today, fresh from conferences with Mr. Roosevelt, it was expected in many quarters that the reply to critics would take the form of another increase in the gold price. It did not materialize, however, and last week's price of $33.76 was allowed to remain.

The $33.76 was fixed last Tuesday. This is the longest period that one price has been maintained since the inauguration of the policy on October 25th. At first the price was advanced daily from the initial figure of $31.56. Two weeks ago there was a short period of stabilization; then the increases were begun again.

HOME LOAN OFFICIAL TO HOLD MEETING HERE

Will Explain Operation, Rules and Regulations in Granting Loans

TO HAVE OPEN FORUM

Building and Loan Society secretaries and officials, and bank officials in the lower end of Bucks County have been invited to attend a meeting at the American Legion Memorial Home, 619 Radcliffe street, here, tomorrow evening, at eight o'clock.

C. William Freed, Bucks County attorney for the Federal Home Owners' Loan Corporation, will be present, together with another representative of the county, to explain the operation, rules and regulations in connection with the granting of the government mortgage loans.

An open forum will be conducted, and an opportunity given to those attending to ask questions. A large number of people who are in difficulties in connection with their mortgage loans, have applied for Home Owners Loan Corporation mortgages, and it is hoped that this meeting will help in speeding up the granting of these loans, and also to familiarize any loan and bank officers with the requirements and details of settlements.

All building and loan, and bank officers are invited to attend.

ENTERTAINS

Miss Gladys Hewitt, Trenton, N. J., entertained on Saturday evening, Miss Evelyn Thomas, Jefferson avenue; Miss Florine Wilkes, Pond street; Miss Cecelia Garrigue, Jefferson avenue and Radcliffe street; John Johnson, West Circle; David Hertzler and Mr. Bird, Radcliffe street.

Important Meeting Of Business Men Here

Plans are completed for the meeting of the newly-formed Bristol Merchants' Association to be held in the Moose home, tomorrow evening, at 9 o'clock.

President Arthur P. Brady, together with the advisory committee, have met and completed a number of important problems to be settled at that time, that should be of great interest to local merchants.

Among these is the question of a local retailers NRA code committee to administer the various phases of the code. "This alone should be of enough importance for the retailer to be present at this meeting," it is stated.

A prominent speaker from the Northeast Merchants' Association of Philadelphia will address the gathering and speak on the necessity of united effort on the part of the members to cope with the many problems of an organization, such as this local association.

The committee has also arranged to serve refreshments in the form of a buffet lunch to everyone present, and it is the wish of the members to have every merchant, large and small, from Mill street or any other street in the town, present at this meeting.

HIGH SCHOOL ELEVEN TIES WITH BORDENTOWN

Second Consecutive "No-Decision" Game Played
By School Team

FINAL SCORE ENDS 6 TO 6

By Jack Orr
(Ass't Press Agent, B. H. S.)

Saturday on the local high school gridiron the Yellow and White of Bordentown battled Bristol High to a 6-6 deadlock. This was the second consecutive tie for the Cardinal and Gray and gives them three no-decision encounters for the season.

Bristol outplayed its Jersey rivals, making nine first downs in Bordentown's three.

Most of the scrimmaging in the first two quarters was played in mid-field with many exchanges. In the closing minutes of the first half "Izzy" Shore, fullback of the Bordentown club, intercepted a pass on the 50-yard line and galloped the remaining yards for the initial tally of the fray. Allen then failed to place-kick the extra point.

The third period was a repetition of the first, most of the playing being in mid-field.

But in the first canto the Bristol team started a march that was finally stopped on the 11 yard line. But the Red and Gray warriors could not be denied. Following a poor kick by Allen, a marvelous running catch by "Flip" Carnvale of a pass thrown by "Jim" Spencer, scored Bristol's only score. Spencer's attempt for extra point via place kick was wide. A few minutes later the game ended with the ball on the mid-field strip.

On Thursday morning the Cardinal

Bill Includes "Too Much Harmony;" "3 Little Pigs"

"Too Much Harmony," Paramount's lavish musical production, currently playing at the Grand Theatre, has an imposing cast including Bing Crosby, Jack Oakie, Skeets Gallagher, Judith Allen, Harry Green, Lilyan Tashman and Ned Sparks.

The story revolves around the activities of a group of show people, and the plot follows them off stage and backstage, in their homes and in their dressing rooms, revealing all of the glamour in the lives of those folks whose job it is to make people laugh and cry.

Bing Crosby, cast as a well-known musical comedy star, is engaged to Lilyan Tashman, a money-grabbing piece of blonde tinsel. While on a trip he hears Judith Allen singing in her small-time vaudeville act, which includes a pair of alleged comedians, Jack Oakie and Skeets Gallagher.

He falls in love with her, brings the entire team to Broadway to appear in his show, and discovers, much to his chagrin, that Judith is virtually engaged to Oakie. He attempts to conceal his love, but it is futile, and he incurs the wrath of both Lilyan and Jack.

At this point, there is too little harmony, with the lovelorn Judith refusing to sing, Oakie refusing to give up her man. However, a series of novel sequences solves the romantic jigsaw, and all hands are happy during the grand finale of the show on opening night.

A fine short subject, "Three Little Pigs," will also be shown at the Grand.

Mrs. Mary Zowcoski Makes
Arrangements to Bury Husband

MISSING SINCE NOV. 17TH

Suspected of Having Murdered Tanka Hetman
Phila. Domestic

NEWTOWN, Nov. 27.—The body of John Zowcoski, Philadelphia, alleged slayer of Tanka Hetman, 35-year-old domestic, was claimed yesterday by his wife, Mary, at a local morgue. Mrs. Zowcoski accompanied by friends had previously visited the Bristol Municipal Building, being under the impression that the body was there.

Mrs. Zowcoski, after making arrangements for the funeral, returned to her home, 642 North Sixth street, Philadelphia. Burial will be made Tuesday in Newtown Cemetery.

Besides his widow, Zowcoski is survived by a 13-year-old daughter, Mrs. Zowcoski said her husband left home on November 17 and that was the last she had seen of him. She declared that he had not been employed for a long time.

An examination of the body revealed that Zowcoski had been severely burned about the hands. Police say that he evidently secured the burns while he was attempting to destroy the gasoline-soaked body of Miss Hetman in the woods near Glenside several days ago. The victim had been beaten, strangled with a necktie and wrapped in a blanket soaked with gasoline.

Zowcoski's body was found Saturday in the thick brush on a farm near the Village Farms near here.

Zowcoski had been sought in this section since four bullets were fired at two State troopers who had gone to the woods to seek him last Monday after Mrs. Joseph Worthington had seen him prowling about the farms. He is believed to have ended his life with his last bullet.

Mrs. Charles H. Ancker, Sr., Dies After Brief Illness

Mrs. Charles H. Ancker, Sr., of 212 Walnut street, died at the private hospital of Dr. J. Fred Wagner, here, this morning, following a brief period of illness, during which an operation had been performed.

The deceased, Tallulah Enston Ancker (nee Downings), was the daughter of the late Joseph M. and Tallulah S. Enston Downings.

The late Bristolian was survived by her husband; two daughters, Miss Harriet L. Downings, Bristol, and Mrs. Frederick H. Thompson, Clearwater, Florida; two sons, Charles H. Ancker, Jr., Brooklyn, N. Y., and Henry Edward Ancker, Bristol; a sister and a brother, Miss Ellen E. Downings, and William E. Downings, Bristol.

Born in Philadelphia, the late Mrs. Ancker came to this borough at an early age, and resided here for the greater part of her life-time. She was affiliated with St. James' P. E. Church, and was a member of Bristol Travel Club.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

SOUTHERN NEWSPRINT

It may be too early to announce the birth of a new and valuable industry in the United States, but the news that nine Georgia newspapers have begun the printing of their regular editions on newsprint made from Southern pine indicates that another rich industry is more than a remote possibility.

The United States, the world's largest consumer of newsprint, imports two-thirds of its daily supply from Scandinavia, Finland, Russia and Canada, the latter leading. The reason is that spruce pulp, up to now, made the best paper and the domestic spruce forests had been wasted along with much of the rest of our timber resource.

Chemistry has made the pulp from Southern pine available for newsprint. The chemists have developed from this common tree of the South a newsprint of sufficient strength and quality to stand up under the severe tests of modern newspaper making.

Should this new domestic paper come into general use it will provide a market for 150,000,000 acres of Southern pine forests and provide the necessary impetus for cultivation of new forests on millions of idle acres stretching from Virginia to the Gulf of Mexico as well as the building of numerous lumber and paper mills providing employment for thousands and a new era of growth and prosperity for the South.

THE CHRISTMAS SHOPPER

When people do their Christmas shopping, they should realize, particularly if they are a little late about it, that the store people are doing about two or three times as much work as usual, and that the shoppers must be prepared to do a little waiting before they can expect service. Those who cannot wait a few minutes until earlier comers are served, should rush out and do their holiday shopping immediately.

We must all keep good natured through the Christmas rush. The store clerks who can keep their temper when customers are cross and grouchy, are headed for promotion. They show capacity for success in retail trade. And the customers who are tolerant and do not find needless fault, are the ones who get the best service in the end.

About time for another upset in Cuba.

It is still a question whether the drug store code should not have been a cross between a grocery store and a hardware store code.

French are building houses with straw. Peasants who live in straw houses should not keep cows.

Another fine thing about the rural life is that you can't hear the neighbor's daughters cultivate their musical talent.

Notwithstanding the fact that half the world doesn't know just how the other half lives it doesn't want it to live that way.

No one has yet suggested taxing of the radio announcer. Possibly this would be an effective way to limit his blab, blab.

Uncle Sam is to cut out the frills in constructing new post offices. This will not mean, though, there will be less eagerness on the part of politicians to occupy them.

Echoes of the Past--

By Louise White Watson

The Parade

If I were in the school room embracing this section, and asked "How many of you recall Henry B. Howell, lovingly called 'Penny Howell,' who kept a store on South Warren street, Trenton?" any number of hands would be raised for Mr. Howell was a pioneer dealer in the penny-store business. How wise he was, thus to cater to the children whose pennies always received a full equivalent, for toys fairly beamed at one, took one by the hand, and sent forth a welcome the minute that little bell over the door summoned the kind-hearted, smiling proprietor or his equally sweet-countenanced sister, Miss Hannah Howell. With what patience they waited for one's decision among all that profusion of little toy soldiers, enchanting dolls, animals of every description that grinned at you or met you with a scowl that was meant to terrify, but which never did, one hesitated as to whether to buy one or more, for some of the toys ran beyond the cent-or-two of the previous board, one could take home "oh, the loveliest little doll you ever did see!" Whichever way the choice went those lovable hosts, there seemed nothing else—would appreciate your decision assuring you you would be well satisfied. I recall, hastening to that fascinating corner with my few pennies gripped in a close-fisted hand, and hearing one of them drop. It was right by one of those gratings. Down I went on my knees and peered eagerly into the depths. I sub-consciously heard the tap-tapping of a cane as someone came near. It was Mr. Dignity, but he stopped long enough to ask the why of my unusual position, and when I, almost in tears, told him of my heavy loss, he became a Mr. Disgusted and with something bordering on a snort he went his way, that cane ever tap-tapping his progress. He might at least have said he sorrowed with me, "Henry B. Howell would. He always smiled with joy and consoled one in sorrow."

Balanced

Mr. Howell was heard to say, "I love the beautiful, outreaching trees, the singing of the birds, the music of the running brook, the rustle of the leaves, and yet, here am I cooped up in a city." But if he were denied that which he loved in nature's fields, he gave of the sunshine of the heavens to others. He was almost 92 years of age when he answered the call to go forward. It was a pleasure to those in close touch with his later years to hear him recount the many changes he had witnessed in the growth of Trenton, saying he remembered it when it was little more than a country town. What a beautiful tribute of love was his, as on the day of his being borne to his last resting place in Riverview Cemetery, fairly covered with the beautiful flowers he so loved, little children, for a long distance, lined the streets. Their friend had gone but they loved and honored him.

Why?

Why do certain faces stand out so prominently and that throughout the years? In recalling Squire White, L. L. White, of near Yardley, whose death occurred August, 1912, one doesn't wonder that "his funeral was one of the largest that has been held in Yardley for a long time." His business took him into many sections of the county and among many people with whom he was ever popular, as his characteristic manner and his ability to tell a humorous story, left with those on whom he was calling, the smile as he said "Good-bye," and drove off. He was at one time, an agent for selling windmills and made quite a success of the business. One man declared with a positiveness that would have sent many another agent on his way, that he simply would not buy the windmill, did not need one, etc., but when Squire left the place, the sale had been consummated to the bewilderment of the purchaser, who fairly shook his fist at the fast retiring salesman. As a debater Squire White was said to be without a peer in this locality, his contributions at the many lyceums he made a practice to attend. They were always brilliant and scintillated with wit and humor. He served as justice of the peace for thirty years.

Another

There were few homes in this vicinity into which Adolph Yunker, well known as a skilled repairer of clocks, did not enter and where his satisfactory work made him ever welcome. Large, abrupt in manner, extremely deaf, his conversation was peculiar and plentifully punctuated with his favorite expression, "Ups dah, you know, up dah," the meaning of which, as far as is known was never revealed to anyone. He would walk the miles, carrying his little satchel containing the tools of his trade, knowing instinctively just where that clock was located that needed his attention. He would work patiently, mumbling to himself, at times turning to the owner of the clock and taking her to task for what he considered had been carelessness in her handling when winding it, or some other cause demanding his displeasure. No one cared for he was so in love with every bit of mechanism that constituted the clock that it was but the mother shielding her child. Every one trusted their clocks to him, and when his death occurred in 1912, he was greatly missed. He was in his 82nd year when he died.

In Review

One sits in review, and the many faces go by. It is such a long parade, which the years are showing. Now and then, with the tramping of feet, comes the music that seemingly belongs. One recognizes those from different sections, whose part in life gave pleasing, definite action that left its mark (probably on the home-town. All along the way some one waves and claims the some one of his realm. Banners wave, cheers are given, salutes honor one here and there, flags proudly carried by the successful ones in life, give forth approval. Each borough, each little village, line the way and never lose sight of the heroes from his home. The world at large or in sections swells with importance as it chronicles achievements, and carries the flag at half-mast when an untimely death claims its victim. But intrepid youth and ambitious manhood reach out for that which forcibly claims them and plunge forward for achievement, often facing danger and death, but without question.

“KNAVE'S GIRL”

By JOAN CLAYTON

COPYRIGHT 1932, KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

SYNOPSIS

Young and lovely Patricia Warren employs the card skill she inherited from her late father to help support her stepmother and step-sisters by playing at bridge parties given by the wealthy Mrs. Kileen Sycott. Pat receives fifty cents an hour. She declines the offer of Julian Haverholt, noted bridge expert, to make her his secretary and partner when, after taking her home, he tries to make love to her. Her nagging stepmother is furious at Pat's refusal. Later, at Mrs. Sycott's home, Patricia meets Clark Tracy, her ideal, only to learn he is engaged to the socially prominent Marthe March. Pat is heartbroken. New Year's Eve, Bill McGee, a small-time politician and thug, insists that Pat accompany him to a dance. They stop at a rival racketeer's place where Bill demands settlement for infringement on his territory. He is shot and Pat flees in terror. Arriving home, Pat is put out by her stepmother who says the police are looking for her. Leda Frayne, a friend, offers Pat a home with her. After searching for work in vain, Pat enters a professional bridge game at the Hotel Beaucarne and wins $35. Jubilant, she returns to Leda. Phil Kennedy, Leda's fiance, quarrels with Pat for gambling, and objects to her living with Leda. Pat rents a cheap furnished room. Later, disgusted with gambling for a livelihood, Pat tries to return home but her stepmother will not allow her to stay. Patrolman Mallory warns Pat that Bill McGee has threatened her for running away when he was shot. Wally Edge, a bridge gambler, phones Pat that he has arranged a game. Arriving at the hotel, she is stunned to find Haverholt one of her opponents.

CHAPTER ELEVEN

Patricia tried hard to seem unconcerned as she crossed the lobby but she was aware of how hard her heart was pounding. Wally Edge was smiling serenely, confidently. His confidence found no echo in the girl. She was angry and disturbed. She could not afford to lose today. How had Wally dared to think that he and she were expert enough to cross swords with Julian Haverholt? Didn't he know who Julian Haverholt was?

He did know. For as he rose he remarked, "You like to gamble with good players, Pat. We'll have a chance this afternoon to try our luck with the best. This is—"

"Miss Warren and I have met before," interposed Haverholt, stepping forward, hand outstretched. Wally opened startled eyes. The girl on the sofa, who had been bored and disinterested, looked up alertly. Clapping Patricia's hand warmly in his own, Haverholt continued, "It's been a long time since I saw you last, Patricia Warren, far too long."

His tone was accusing. Both words and glance suggested that they shared a common past, a past romantic, if lightly melancholy, a past glamorous and unforgotten. Wally too was watching, his face wearing an expression of irritating knowledge. In her annoyance, Patricia did not know what to say or how to straighten out the situation, which she felt sure Haverholt had created deliberately. A moment later Wally gave her an opportunity.

He grinned and said "You never told me that you were friends, Pat."

"We weren't," Patricia remarked coolly. "I have met Mr. Haverholt only once before."

Haverholt was not rebuffed. His amused eyes rested upon her. With his faculty for making her feel youthful, gauche and ill at ease, he observed, "You can't blame me for that, can you?"

"I wasn't blaming you. I was merely giving Wally the facts."

"Oh, I see," said Haverholt, up-merely relieved. "Then you weren't suggesting that we are enemies now?"

"Miss Warren, this is Miss Dorothy Luray, my secretary and my partner."

"No, I wasn't," conceded Patricia stiffly.

The other girl rose abruptly. "Do I meet Miss Warren or don't I?" she inquired.

"I'm sorry, Dorothy," murmured the bridge expert. He made the introduction, "Miss Warren this is Miss Dorothy Luray, my secretary and my partner."

He faintly stressed the last words. Patricia remembered vividly the occasion when she had declined to accept the position that the other girl now occupied, and she suspected that the man was remembering too. She and Dorothy Luray measured glances. The other failed to extend her hand. Patricia could not guess whether or not the omission was studied; still she decided that she disliked the thin, smart girl in the tweed and furs, decided further that the dislike was mutual.

"Well, did we come here to play bridge or to hold a reunion?" asked Wally restively. "I feel like a good hand session myself."

"So do I," echoed Dorothy Luray. Patricia felt like anything but that. She was obsessed by a premonition of ill luck. Like most habitual card players she had come to have a superstitious belief in order to win one must feel right, must be convinced that the cards would run. Everything had started wrong this afternoon. She was certain of ultimate defeat, so certain that she would have liked to refuse to play. Just then Haverholt said the very thing to hold her there.

Looking down on her, he remarked, "Remember the last time we played? You were lucky then. Today I warn you that I'm out for blood."

"Come and get me," returned Patricia.

"Brave," applauded Wally. As they entered the card room he crowded close to her and whispered, "Get in there and pitch, Pat. The Luray is nothing to write home about. I'd like to take Haverholt. If you're in top form all we need is a few of the kings and aces."

"You'll need more than that," predicted Haverholt, disconcertingly peeping up at his elbow. Wally went scarlet. Ignoring the man's confusion, looking straight at Pat,

Patricia, Haverholt said a second time, "I'm out to win today."

It was like a threat.

There were many players in the room already and it appeared that no table was available.

"I'll fix it up," promised Haverholt and vanished.

"He will too," Dorothy assured the others comfortably. Glancing at Patricia she said, "You don't seem especially anxious to play, Miss Warren."

"But, I am," said Patricia decisively.

Haverholt fixed it up. A table was magically produced and crowded into an out-of-the-way corner.

"Cut for the deal," said Haverholt, jogging Pat's attention as he personally as if he were addressing a convention. He had put on his bridge manner. She was no more and no less to him than an opponent. Patricia cut the Queen of Spades and got the deal.

"An unlucky card," murmured Haverholt.

"Lucky for me."

Still she was so nervous that her first attempt resulted in a misdeal. Haverholt returned the cards, rifled them again. Across the table Dorothy smiled slowly, triumphantly. Wally looked anxiously at his partner's shaking hands.

"I've never seen you so butter-fingered," he said irritably.

"I am clumsy," admitted Patricia with an uncertain laugh. She dealt once more. "I think that the distinguished company has made me nervous. I'll be all right in a minute."

"Set," Haverholt, ever alert for praise, forgot that she was an opponent. He was as pleased as a boy of ten.

"By the way," interposed Dorothy sharply, "we haven't set the stakes. What shall we make them?"

"Whatever you say," responded Wally curtly.

"Let's make them small then," decided Dorothy. "Say five cents a point. Or perhaps Miss Warren would like a stiffer game?"

"Five cents suits me," replied Patricia, who had never played for more than two. Her face was pale.

CATALINE'S PLUNGE
KEEPS RECORD CLEAN

(By T. M. Juno)

Al Cataline's plunger through tackle for a touchdown in the first quarter was the only score of the game on St. Ann's field yesterday afternoon as the St. Ann's A. A. chalked up its ninth straight victory of the season and kept its record unmarred. The Lambertville Ramblers, with a previous record of six straight wins, were the opponents with the final score being 6-0.

A large crowd followed the Jersey club to the local gridiron as the game was the Jerseyites' "banner" game of the season and with the Bristol team's line the weakest it has ever been this season, the Lambies stood a fine chance of taking over the locals.

But to the astonishment of the spectators that weak Bristol line held up wonderfully, especially in the final quarter when the Lambertville eleven was on the Purple and Gold's ten yard line. The "Lambies" took four tries at the line without avail and the locals punted out of danger.

Handicapped by injuries to his line-men, Coach DeRisi started "Heinie" Seneca at guard. Seneca was injured before the first quarter was up and removed from the game. DeRisi replaced him. Tulio, regular end, was moved to tackle while Esposito was played at Tulio's place as wingman. During the second half, "Dick" Seneca, regular fullback was placed at a guard position and finished the game there.

Snappy Games Booked
In Cage League Tonight

(By T. M. Juno)

Third Ward and the Y. M. A. St. Ann's and the Odd Fellows. That is the menu for the basketball fans in this section for tonight in the Italian Mutual Aid Hall as the Bristol Basketball League begins its second week of competition.

The Third Ward-Y. M. A. game seems to be a classic. These two quintets fought it out for the championship last season with the Y's turning out to be the victors. The Warders have a good chance to beat the 1932 champions as that team looked weak in its opening debut against the St. Ann's A. A. team, while the Warders made a very impressive showing against the Paterson Parchment Paper Company.

The Odd Fellows and St. Ann's will be a close match. The Purple and Gold opened with a closely fought game with the Y. M. A. last Thursday night and now with the signing of Frank Riechert, of Trenton, seem to be set for the season. The Odd Fellows did not click in their first game but looked good in defeat.

On Friday night the Hibernians will clash with the Knights of Columbus and the Hawks play the Paterson Parchment Paper Company.

Tap-off tonight will take place at eight o'clock sharp.

TREASURY REORGANIZED

Washington, D. C., Nov. 27—In one week as head of the government's finances, Henry Morgenthau, Jr., has effected a complete reorganization of the Treasury Department.

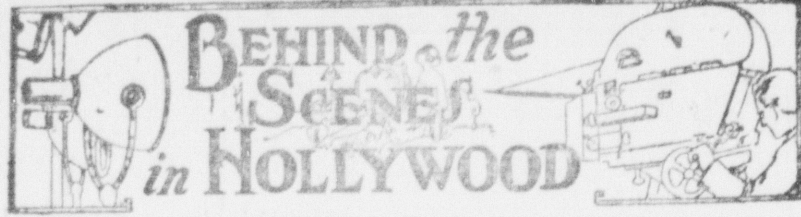

Many administrations have come and gone without disturbing the inner circles of treasury experts who, since the Taft regime, have had large influence in the molding of the financial policies of the government.

Immediately on taking the office as under-secretary and Acting Secretary of the Treasury, Morgenthau named Earle Balle of the J. & W. Seligman Company House of New York, bond and stock brokers, as his chief aid. Balle practically has taken over the duties ordinarily performed by the under-secretary. He has charge of all fiscal matters.

HOLLYWOOD. —Let the gossips make of it what they will but Constance Bennett and the Marquis Henri de la Falaise celebrated their second wedding anniversary like a pair of lovers.

Constance Bennett

The Marquis filled La Bennett's room with white flowers—roses, chrysanthemums, sweet peas and gardenias. He presented her with a valuable porcelain miniature that he brought from Europe.

Among Constance's gifts to "Henri" was a radio for his car.

The pair are giving a big party Saturday night for the Baron Jauncey, their house guest, who is returning shortly to Paris. Many of Hollywood's elite will be attending.

Meanwhile La Bennett is reading a half dozen stories submitted to her by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. She wants to get her picture done, so she can go to New York after the first of the year for the premiere of "Moulin Rouge." By that time, the Marquis' ball idyl, "Lelong," also will be ready for release.

Hollywood's grapevine is buzzing with conjecture.

Is the sudden cooling of interest between Sally Blane and Rex Columbus due to the arrival here of Dorothy Dell, "Miss Universe" of 1930, who was engaged to the crooner back east?

Miss Dell comes here to make pictures for Paramount. In case you've forgotten, she was a Ziegfeld Follies hit singing the crazy tune of a few seasons ago. "Was I Drunk, Was He Handsome and Did My Ma Give Me H—?"

The reason back of Pat de Cicco's fast trip to Sacramento was to offer Max Baer the lead in RKO's forthcoming "You Won't Sing, Eh!" He carried with him a copy of the script, for the cocky heavyweight's manager, Anell Hoffman, won't let Max make another movie unless he okay the story.

Report has it that the tall fighter was offered the staggering sum of $3500 a week for a 40 week contract with M-G-M. And that he can get as much as $5000 a week for the one picture at RKO.

Close friends of the couple insist that Douglas Fairbanks will be coming back to Hollywood before long but that he and Mary Pickford will maintain separate establishments. Also that Mary will retain Pickfair for her home.

If you can believe Charlie Ruggles, a little nurse in a Hollywood hospital gave the squelch elegant to one of the gay blades of the film colony.

A bit woozy from ether, the actor addressed the nurse as "darling." She gave him a level look, replied: "Nurse to you."

QUICK GLIMPSES:

The scavenger party, introduced by Elsa Maxwell to New York socialites, appears to have hit Hollywood again. At least, the night watchman at Sardis reports that an expensive limousine drew up at 4 a. m. A young man in evening dress jumped out, grabbed up the $500 mat in front of the restaurant, shouted "I've got it," jumped back into the car and drove rapidly away. Police so far have failed to discover the culprit.

Just one step this side of illness for many weeks, Claudette Colbert finally has had to take to her bed, thus holding up the Columbia production of "Night Bus." Ned Sparks is another of the film colony to join the sick list. He's entered a sanitarium near San Bernardino for a brief rest cure. . . . You'd never recognize Patsy Ruth Miller she's gone so continental. Pat Irwin, Gelsey and Joseph Makiewicz made it a three-some at the Clover Club the other evening. . . . Al Green, who goes east to be best man at Mervyn Leroy's wedding, gave Merv his first job in pictures. . . . Marian Marsh has finished her Universal picture and is heading for England to act for British International. . . . And the recently divorced Gordon Westcott took a different girl to breakfast, luncheon and dinner at Sardis the other day.

are trying hard to co-operate with their captain and the school to have another safety record this year for Wood street school.

For the last two weeks an intensive study of poetry has been made in the seventh grade literature classes, which has resulted in quite an enthusiasm in all sections for original poems. The students enjoy hearing poems written by one of their classmates. "The Fairy Man" and "Thanksgiving," both written by this student.

are most commendable.

The geography lesson of the fourth grade, on Friday, was most interesting, and doubly enjoyable, because the session was followed by a small repeat, the result of a practical lesson. In studying about farming sections, the teacher, Miss Sarah Diehl, assisted the pupils in churning butter. The freshly-made farm product was properly seasoned, and then sandwiches made and eaten.
